Supporting the Full Grants Lifecycle

More than $1 trillion is annually invested by the US federal government through grants to fund health, transportation, research, and everything in-between. Federal funding agencies, state and local entities, and grant recipients face a multitude of challenges when executing their grant programs to provide public services and stimulate the economy. Grant stakeholders currently report processes require spending more than 35% of their resources on administrative tasks, pulling essential funding away from supporting the mission.

Our team of grants experts have extensive experience working with and connecting all grant stakeholders to address these challenges and more through

- Implementing best practices and technologies to Reduce Burden
- Increasing process automation and machine-readable data to Improve Transparency
- Supporting government-wide requirements to Standardize Processes
- Developing and executing assessments to Manage Risk
- Providing analytics to “tell the story” of programs and Measure Impact

Representative Experience

Guidehouse supports all 26 federal grant-making agencies from the Dept of Health and Human Services to the Dept of Transportation to FEMA.
